PYTHIAN MEMORIAL SERVICE

Lodges of Tenth Pythian District Attend Christ Church—P. G. C. Harry R. Lawrence Gives Memorial Statement and Rev. Charles W. Henry Gives Address

"Building the Temple of Friendship" was the subject of the Memorial service held Sunday morning in Christ church by the Pythian lodges of the Tenth Pythian district.

The Knights of Pythias representing Quindaro lodge, No. 32, Black Prince lodge, No. 36, Kearsarge lodge, No. 124, William B. Gale lodge, No. 140, Lawrence lodge, No. 162, Garfield lodge, No. 172, Essex lodge, No. 179 and Pythian Sisters from Calanthe Temple, No. 12, Louise Gale Temple, No. 32 and Garfield Temple, No. 42, assembled in Fraternal hall on Park street and escorted by a delegation from Silvertone Company, U. R. K. P., in command of Capt. Clarence Kimball marched to the church and occupied several pews in front of the auditorium.

The guests of honor were Past Grand Chancellors Harry R. Lawrence, I. Franklin Batchelder and George P. Fielden; Past Grand Chief Mrs. Maude Bradstreet; Brig. Gen. Robert Hall, Col. H. F. Reed, Major A. Greer, Uniform Rank, K. of P. Haverhill, and Lt. Col. George Nelson, Uniform Rank, K. of P., Lawrence.

P. G. C. Harry R. Lawrence gave the Memorial statement, and said that Pythians might properly be called road and bridge builders, and it was right to honor on that day those who had prepared the way for them. None have builded better than those who have bridged the high places and filled up the valleys. As Pythians, he said, their duty is to build roads for those who come after them, for the sentiment of Pythianism is to span the chasm, bridge the river and level the hills in their daily duties.

"Taps" was sounded after the close of P. G. C. Lawrence's address, in memory of those who had passed on after preparing the way for those who follow.

Alfred Kidder 2d, who was graduated cum laude also won honors in Bible, biology and philosophy. William D. Walker won honors in ancient history.

Baccalaureate Sermon

The attitude toward life of young people in preparatory schools and colleges was the theme of the address given Sunday afternoon to the senior class of Phillips academy by Rev. James Gordon Gilkey, D.D., of Springfield.

He opened his remarks by quoting the very radical points of view of two college students as expressed in a recent meeting held in New York. One young man spoke of religion as something which might be "either taken or left" while a young woman said that what the present generation longed for above all else was independence, intellectual, spiritual and ethical without regard to the ideals of their elders. Such expressions, he said, should be listened to with a saving sense of humor, particularly as young people, in a desire to shock their parents and teachers often drew on the imagination.

To give a more wholesome attitude toward life he commended to his hearers' attention several great principles of life. The first of these was that life lays on all of us the obligation of constant self-control in spite of the modern talk of "development through unrestrained self-expression". The second principle was that happiness in life is found through hard work and fine achievement, not in leisure, idleness and spending money. As examples he cited Edison and Charles W. Eliot who found satisfaction in hard work, followed by conspicuously valubale achievement.

And finally he stressed the obligation to pass on the ideas and ideals of our present civilization built up around our schools, colleges and philanthropic agencies, and make an adequate repayment of the investment made on their lives. "For unto whomsoever much is given, of him shall be much required."

The order of service:

A Sweeping Success because it offers Big Car Qualities for only $745

The New Pontiac Big Six is a sweeping success—an even more pronounced success than its famous predecessors. And it owes its success largely to the fact that it offers big car qualities at low prices. Oakland produced this car to enable progressive people to step up in motor car quality without leaving the low-priced field. And the very people for whom it was created have made it an impressive sales success.

Pontiac Big Six, $745 to $895, f.o.b. Pontiac, Michigan, plus delivery charges. Bumpers, spring covers and Lovejoy shock absorbers regular equipment at slight extra cost. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

Consider the delivered price as well as the list price when comparing automobile values . . . Oakland-Pontiac delivered prices include only reasonable charges for handling and for financing when the Time Payment Plan is used.

THEATRES

WILBUR THEATRE

The Messrs. Shubert will present a new musical comedy called "Boom Boom," at the Wilbur theatre, beginning Monday evening, June 17, for a limited engagement.

From the ballyhooist's bulletins, the outstanding facts seem to be that "Boom Boom" is based on a French farce, that the author and producers have preserved as far as possible the situations, dialogue and intent of the original; that it is one of the biggest and most elaborate productions the Shuberts have ever made, and that everybody connected with the confection is agreed that it is a first rate show in kind. Important somebodies contributed to the writing, staging, and the musical score, and a congress of musical comedy talent impersonate the numerous characters.

With a long list of musical comedies to their credit, notably the big Winter Garden productions, the credit line on a program: "The Messrs. Shubert present,"—has become a symbol, an epitome of everything worthwhile in the musical comedy field of stage entertainment. This, the first of their mid-season production schedule, having been produced in New York during the Christmas holidays, is said to be one of the firm's most ambitious offerings in recent years.

Miss Fanny Todd Mitchell wrote the book, Werner Janssen, a coming young composer did the music, and Mann Holiner did the lyrics. The veteran George Marion staged the scenes and Jack Boyle trained the girls in their stuff.

Frank McIntyre is the principal player and other members of the cast are Nell Kelly, Harry Welsh, Cortez and Peggy, Marcella Swanson, Harold Conkling, Kendall Capps, Brad Mitchell, Mabel Elaine, Richard Lee, Archie Leach, Rosalind Rensing, and the Four Nightingales, Evelyn Sayres, Loretta Sayres, Doreen Glover and Jessie Payne.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE

"The Wheel of Life" is a picturization of the successful stage play by James Bernard Fagan which played two seasons in London. It is a romantic drama whose setting is a British military post in India, where Dix, as the dashing captain at the post, falls in love with the beautiful wife of his superior officer. The pair foreswear their romance for the honor of the regiment, but they meet later during an engagement with the wild mountain tribes of Tibet. Dix shows to advantage in the colorful role of a military man and he wears the dramatic and sartorial badge of soldiery with distinction. Supporting Dix in the cast are Esther Ralston and O. P. Heggie.

The picture was directed by Victor Schertzinger, the man who made more than a score of successes, including "Forgotten Faces", "Redskin", and "Nothing But the Truth", the latter being Dix' first all-talking picture, and one which enhanced him in the hearts of the public, as he has a clear, distinct voice which reproduces most excellently. Unlike many of the stars of the silent drama his voice has really helped his popularity rather than diminished it, which has been the case generally.

Ted Claire and his Met Syncopators head this week's stage show, "Honeymoon Cruise" which takes you for a ride on a de luxe ocean-going vessel, with a cast of vaudeville favorites including Ray Bolger, comedian; Joe & Willie Hale, tap dancers; Luella Fiertag coloratura soprano, late of the German Opera company; Babe Morris ingenue; and Billy Myers, Eugene Rainey, the Honeymoon Trio, and the Dorothy Berke Girls complete the cast.

Arthur Martel returns to his post at the Metropolitan as feature organist after a week's pleasure trip to New York. His selection will be, "While Strolling Through the Park."

Graduates from Berry Kindergarten Normal School

Miss Bertha Hall of Ballardvale was a member of the class graduated from the Perry Kindergarten Normal school of 25 Huntington Ave., Boston, at exercises held Saturday, June 8, in the Ballroom of the Copley Plaza hotel. Diplomas were awarded to forty-four pupils. Miss Hall was editor of the class year book.

The exercises consisted of a demonstration by the class of some of the kindergarten songs and playground and kindergarten games, followed by an address to the graduating class by Mr. William D. Parkinson, lecturer on Education at Boston University, and formerly principal of the State Normal School at Fitchburg, Mass. The presentation of the diplomas was made by Mrs. Harriot Hamblen Jones, principal of the school. At the close of the exercises the three classes and the Alumnae joined in the singing of Handel's Largo and the Mother's Hymn.

Mr. Parkinson's address was on "All the World's A School" and he brought out the point that each one must abide by her own decision, not regretting or complaining and that nothing can succeed without a spiritual background. He said that in spite of popular fancy at the present time right and wrong still have a very distinct meaning and each must choose for herself.

Other phases of the three year's work were shown in the form of an exhibit of doll houses which the graduating class had made, complete even as to the furniture, lighting fixtures and pictures on the wall,—by their paintings, nature study work, clay modeling and other forms of hand work.

Club Champion at Andover

John F. O'Connell, former president, led the field in the qualifying round of the Merrimack Valley Country club golf championship staged at the Methuen course. He turned in the low score of 79, going out in a beautiful 37 and home in 42. He was two strokes better than his partner, James H. Eaton. Eaton took an 81 and led Dr. J. A. Levek and Charles E. Bradley, Jr., by one stroke.

This is the second time that O'Connell led the field turning in an 81 for low score in 1926, but was tied with Dr. Joseph Fenton.

Members of the Andover club, who are also members at Merrimack turned out in large numbers as everybody wanted to qualify in one of the four divisions. Local members fared well as five of them qualified in the first flight of 16. They were J. F. O'Connell 79, James H. Eaton 81, Dr. Joseph A. Levek 82, Dr. Charles P. Gabeler 86, and Frank G. Murch 90. Other Andover club participants were John F. Murphy 104, E. Eben Grimes 107, A. J. Hanscom, 110, R. G. Kneupfer 113, James H. Bride 117, and T. E. Andrew, Jr., 116. There were 64 entries in all.

In the outward nine, O'Connell was over par twice, at the second and fifth holes. Going to the second he was on in two, but played this third over and took two additional putts to hole out. He finished with a 37, one over par.

He didn't fare so well in the second nine, hitting four pars, but taking extra strokes at the other five holes.

Both O'Connell and Eaton reached the final round of former championships. O'Connell was runner-up to Dr. C. P. Gabeler in 1926—one of the years he was president of the club. Eaton bowed to Charles L. Lanigan. O'Connell and Eaton both belong to the Andover C. C. as well. Eaton has been its champion since the course was opened and he will endeavor to reverse the story at Andover's qualifying round.

O'Connell was in good form for later in an informal match with Eaton he registered an 80, a 42 and 38. He had three birdies in this round, getting a two at the fourth; two at the 11th and four at the 15th.

Ideal weather greeted the golfers and a fine entry responded. The sixteen to qualify in the championship flight will play off their matches even, while the players in the remaining flights will be handicapped.

Eaton played consistent golf in his rounds of the qualifying play. He took a 41 for the first nine and a 40 for the second.

He and O'Connell played 36 holes for the day and at the end they were all flat, it being a nip and tuck battle for them hole for hole and then at the end of their pleasant journey they left the course just where they had started the day so far as their personal battle was concerned.

Dr. J. A. Levek vs. Dr. L. Hyde.
F. M. Houston vs. E. S. Duffy.
C. E. Bradley, Jr., vs. George Weldon.
Dr. J. W. Fenton vs. Dr. J. J. Baltley.

ABBOT BACCALAUREATE

Sermon Preached by the Rev. Albert Parker Fitch, D. D., at the South Church June 2nd

Some time ago, before Mr. John Erskine took to writing commercially profitable novels dealing with the pure relativity of morals, he published a volume of really distinctive essays, the first of which he called the "Moral Obligation to be Intelligent." I am taking this title of Mr. Erskine's essay as the theme of the baccalaureate address this morning. As we celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of a school of learning it may not be out of place to remind you of what, for the most part, is overlooked in American Schools; namely, that the chief thing in a school of learning is, after all, this moral obligation to be intelligent.

The sense of moral obligation is strong and relatively constant in all human beings. At every stage of a man's life you may see it. It is strong in normal youth. Your acute eye for the simulations of goodness, your dislike of religious and moral conventions as such, and your scorn of hypocrisy prove it. Hypocrisy is rarer than you imagine, but the joyous cruelty with which you expose the pretentious and ridiculous is born of your deep sense of the value of sincerity and simplicity. There hangs in Warren House, underneath the picture of a lad who died in the Great War, an excerpt from one of his freshman themes. It runs as follows:

"Three years later, however, I began to live. This was brought about through a great sorrow which entered my life. My father died, leaving me with a wonderful mother, who didn't understand me, and a great responsibility. I did not realize how much I should miss this man until later when problems that my mother did not, and could not, understand came up, and it was left all to my own judgment to decide them. It was up to me to make good and do it all by myself. Whether or not I will succeed remains to be seen, but I can truthfully say that so far I think my mother has been pleased."

There speaks the spirit of youth; this particular testimony is holy because of the heroic deeds and death of the boy who penned it, but it is even more valuable because it is typical. This is the way youth, most properly not given to proclaiming it, really strives and feels.

The love of goodness is strong too in middle age. You were taught by your parents the bedside prayer and other simple offices of devotion. You may see your parents no longer doing these things, and perhaps may never hear them talking about the higher life. But the sanity and health of civilization rests on the fact that a great group of middle aged men and women, a group large enough in each generation to be sufficient leaven for the over prosperous lump, proposes to itself each day to do justly and to love mercy and to walk with humility. We call it professional ethics, business integrity, civic virtue. These things, are, however, merely appropriate and characteristic expressions of men's love of goodness.

You may remember that Walter Scott, of whom Lockhart says in his fine phrase that "in him the gentleman survived the genius", when he was dying, was brought down from his upper chamber in Abbotsford to the great dining room and placed in the oriel window where he might hear the Tweed murmuring over its pebbles outside, just and that a few moments before his death, returning to consciousness he looked up at his son-in-law and said, "Lockhart, be a good man; nothing else will help when you lie here." That is the way a great gentleman and old men naturally feel. The sense of moral obligation is strong, the problems of expressing it is difficult. And that, for two reasons. First: The content of morality is changing all the time, not only as between generation and generation but even within our own generation. For instance, there are in this house today many elder women who belong to the Alumnae of this school and who have been graduated anywhere from ten to twenty-five years. How immensely the content of moral life has changed since they were in Abbot Academy! They kept Sunday in ways which must have made even them, like every other girl, want a different kind of a day! These present graduates keep a joyous and a happy Sunday,—still held back by a good many discreet and lavender prescriptions, and yet the difference between the sort of Sunday that you elder women kept and the sort that these young women keep, is enormous. Another instance: In the early days of the primitive Church there was a Bishop,—the Bishop of Antioch, named Ignatius. And ther was strife in those days as to whether the State or the Church stood first. The Roman Emperor was very wise in allowing everyone to keep his own religion, but the Emperor said that every man must give his first allegiance to the State, therefore all must worship before the statue of the Emporer which was found in every large town. Now this man Ignatius would not do it. He said, "Nothing comes before my God; my conscience is higher than my State." Therefore they sent for him to be taken to Rome and be thrown to the lions in the arena. On his way he wrote a famous letter to the Romans in which he xaid, "Come, fire and the cross; come crowds of wild beasts; come the breakings, tearings, separations of bones; let the very torment of the devil come upon me. But only let me be true to Jesus Christ." You see this man was what we should call a "pacifist", and in his day the content of the good life lay in insisting upon the rights of his conscience as against the demands of the State. Perhaps similar problems will confront you as they have already confronted your brothers. It is interesting to note that, having killed Ignatius, then afterward they sainted him.

A little later on there was feudal Europe, decentralized and turbulent. There was no economic unity, no political unity. Only one thing held feudal Europe together, and that was the great covering fabric of the Christian church. The Papacy was the only international force which was saving the turbulent continent.

There came a day when the King of England, Henry the Second, said, "I will stand for nationalism and keep my country a nationalistic state." But he had a great chancellor. Becket said, "No, the international power is greater and more valuable than the merely national." So he arrayed himself on the side of the Papacy. Henry did not have Becket killed. One does not do that. Henry permitted him to be killed. It is not so messy for your conscience to do that. He was slain not far from the high altar in Canterbury Cathedral.

Of course that kind of moral problem never comes to us. That is to say, it never comes up to us in that precise content, but it does come for us in principle. This man decided as a part of his moral obligation,—being an intelligent person,—as you are presumably,—that great international force was more potent for the welfare of Europe than nationalistic rivalries. They killed him and then they sainted him, too. You will have a similar moral problem when you decide as to your attitude towards the League of Nations.

A little later on there was the beginning of the Eighteenth Century in England. England had still the inheritance of the Restoration and the Restoration drama, which is certainly brilliant and scabrous—is more brilliant than scabrous, but both. Licentiousness was rife. John Wesley rose to try to give the people something to make human beings of them, and set his face against the moral delinquencies of his day. He made a fresh code of morals, born of a new problem in England, and said, "You shall not dance," because dancing was then sex-license; "You shall not play cards," which was then high gambling. It was not as bad as the gambling is now on Wall Street, and not as cruel, not as ruthless. Still, it was high gambling. And he said, "You shall not go to the play." Because the plays of those days did not merely skate over thin ice, but over open water for the most part! Therefore, taking the kind of culture he found, this man made a new set of morals in order to meet it.

One more illustration. A great man wrote, a couple of hundred years ago, a book called Pilgrim's Progress. I used to read the book when I was a boy because I did not have to! I enjoyed it. Christian starts out alone from the City of Destruction to save his own soul. Alone he comes to the straight and narrow gate; alone he goes by the interpreter's house and the lions in his way, and Giant Despair, and then comes to the Delectable Mountains.

Now, today, if a good man finds himself in the City of Destruction and has a sense of moral obligation, will he run away from it? Not he! He will say, "I will either die with it or live for it!" Again, we have a new morality.

Second: Moral choices are also difficult because the content of our deeds depends also on our time of life and on our own particular circumstances. Goodness is one thing for the child, another for the grown man or woman. So we come to your own problem. What does it mean to be good as an Abbot graduate? It means having a honest, honorable and well trained mind. Character, for you, must include, first, free and clear and courageous thinking. We all remember the story related in the biography of Phillips Brooks of what happened when he first went down to Alexandria in Virginia to begin his theological training. He arrived in the evening, after the courses of the day were over, and found his fellow students engaged in a prayer meeting. He was naturally a shy man, with no great facility of superficial religious expression, and he was both embarrassed and discouraged as he saw the ease and eloquence with which the students prayed and testified. Brooks felt himself humble and abashed in the presence of these young apostles. But in the following days when he saw these young men in the classroom, heard them fail in their courses, realized the intellectual laziness and failure in academic duties which they displayed, he then felt for them a healthy and well merited contempt. Just so with us; the natural place to look for character in this community is in the class-room, the laboratory, the study, the library.

You are graduates now of an ancient school. Do not sink under the weight of the gloomy sanctity of the last one hundred years. Expand in the light of the infinite variety which has kept this school going for one hundred years. For plasticity and change are the two notes of life; and, if this school has lived one hundred years, it has done so because plasticity and change have been working their divine alchemy all the time in it. There never was a time in which it was more necessary that you should recognize your obligation to intelligent thinking. For you are American-born girls and I do not think the sense of mental integrity is a chief American characteristic. We believe in morality of action because we love action, and for the most part it never occurs to us that you can't have morality of action if you have not got integrity of thinking. For how can anybody act straight and think crookedly? How can anybody act crookedly and think straight? How can anybody not quite know what they are about and yet do it well? As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he. Such as are your habitual thoughts, such shall be your soul, for the soul is dyed by your thoughts.

Let me ask you who are now graduating: In the few moments when school leaves you alone so that you will not get into mischief but in the hope you will have a sense of leisure, what do you talk about? Do you talk about other people? Do you engage in that most American sort of conversation,—and the Lord God Almighty knows there is an awful lot of it,—which has to do with gossip, with personalities, with Susie, and Jim and Tom and Dick and Harry and Ermintrude and Hildegarde? Most of the time we are using our tongues we are doing it to talk personalities. It indicates a subnormal mentality. It also indicates an unethical mentality.

But do you, in those rare moments, talk about facts? Do you talk about the things you have been learning, facts let us say in science? "Why," you say, "how quaint! Why should I?"

But do you, when you have your moments of leisure, not talk gossip and personalities, and not merely talk facts, but talk ideas, or has it ever occurred to you that ideas are going to make and mar this republic in the future as ideas have made and marred it in the past? Has that occurred to you? There really is no reason why you should be supported by your fellows and by the school and by the milk boys and by these men putting up the tents here today—working all day Sunday getting ready for tomorrow—there is no reason why you should be subsidized by all these unless it is that you should get the thing the school stands for—learning, mental power, love of the intellectual life, interest in the play of ideas, and understanding that ideas are the creative power of any culture.

Again it is perfectly clear that American life is not altogether interested in this sort of thing, when you look at our amusements. If you will look a nation's amusements you will get a good idea of the character of the nation. by seeing what that nation does in its moments of economic freedom. Look at the movie shows, and now the talkies. I do not like that word. I call them "speakies"—I like that better. How much do they show the sense of moral responsibility for intelligent participation in life? Answer me that question. Take their titles. "Romance of the Underworld." Oh, how fascinating! And another one, "The Woman God Forgot." A silly title. Another one, "Was She Maid, Wife or Widow?"

I would advise you girls who are being graduated and are supposed to go out of this place with something more than an informed intelligence, to read the billboards of the cinema shows and see how American life drops into semi-salacious sentimentality. Or you might go further than that and look at all the propaganda which takes the place of information in the public prints. And it is your business to learn to distinguish between objective and judicial information and clever and commercialized propaganda.

What is to be done for our American democracy in which you have a vote, if most of you will never bother to use it? What is to be done in ade mocracy unless you are constantly working at lifting its intelligence? Do you remember how Carlyle defined a democracy? Carlyle said, "It is that form of government in which Jesus Christ and Judas Iscariot each has one vote!" We have got plenty of morons voting—plenty of them. It is up to you to see that women who have character, brains, intelligence, power to realize life, are voting. Otherwise your whole education is wasted.

What is the moral obligation on you, then? To be intelligent. That, first of all. I have not the least worry that you are going to indulge in any spectacular, secondary sins. I am afraid you will indulge in subtle and primary sins; the acceptance of easy ignorance; the use of purely conventionalized judgment; the dreadful sense of local complacency and selfrighteousness; the life of community irresponsibility. Those are primary sins if Jesus was right.

I hope that you can take out of this baccalaureate sermon just this: You naturally want to be good in the abstract. Like everybody else, you do not much like to be good in the concrete unless you can choose what the concrete is to be. Nevertheless, you naturally want to be good, and you must realize that to be good in a rapidly shifting world like ours calls for genuine intellectual power to realize the problems of conduct and the problems of faith that will come up before you. What is the thing which is your obligation as graduates of Abbot Academy? Have you gotten here the habit of intellectual industry? If we have gotten that habit, and we have learned how to collect facts and relate facts one to the other, and to draw just inferences from the facts, and to see their significance, that is a great thing. Then, have you made up your minds in these years within this school that you have a great obligation and a great opportunity for our nation, to watch with a trained mind the movements in art and literature, and religion and politics; the movements in economics, and are you going to watch them, and try to guide them? Are you going to become the constructive critics of our American life?

Eloping Couple Married in Andover

In a surprise elopement, not entirely unexpected by their friends, Miss Cynthia Estelle Hunt, a junior at Smith College who made her home with her aunt, Mrs. Sylvia Paine at 51 High street, North Attleboro, and Clyde Muncey Wallace of Ann Arbor, Mich, motored to Andover Monday afternoon and were united in marriage at the Town House by George A. Higgins, justice of the peace.

The elopers shared their plans with Jarvis Hunt, brother of the bride, and a Harvard Law School student, and Hunt and his own bride were present at the ceremony.

The group left for Andover ostensibly to visit Miss Sylvea Shapleigh, a classmate of Mrs. Wallace at Smith College. Previous arrangements had been made for the wedding and they left Andover immediately after the ceremony.

Wallace who is a graduate of the University of Michigan is a salesman employed by L. G. Balfour Company, Attleboro, manufacturers of class rings and other jewelry. He became acquainted with his bride about a year ago.

Diplomacy Up to Date

Long distance business, which once conducted its affairs by slow moving mail, now takes advantage of the telephone, telegraph and air mail. Personal contacts, facilitated by quick automobile and rail transportation, are made over wide areas. Government has been slow to take advantage of these quicker, more intimate contacts. Diplomatic messages often travel over seas at the rate of a few miles an hour. The personal contact is often very indirect.

How gratifying it is therefore to know that the newly appointed head of the British Commonwealth will interview our President in person. How much more satisfactory, and conducive of good will this is. It reveals intense earnestness on the part of the participants to get at the bottom of a very serious situation. In these days, when London is only five days from Washington, international relations would follow smoothly course if more personal contacts of this nature were made. A responsible leader is bound to have more personality than a written message or even a go-between ambassador, often of questionable tact and judgment.

Official relations between this country and England have been somewhat strained of late. It is easy to think that when a crisis arises if a responsible head of one nation called another on the telephone and talked of nothing more than golf or fishing, misunderstandings would be avoided and cordiality substituted therefor.

The proposed meeting of President Hoover and Premier MacDonald should be fruitful and its example could be followed by great advantage in the future, thus supplementing some of our present cumbersome, expensive and unsatisfactory hierarchy of diplomacy.

A La Jesse James

Is prohibition enforcement running wild? Are those who are coping with an almost impossible situation growing desperate? and losing their heads? The recent inexcusable shooting along the Canadian border shows to what drastic lengths some agents of the law are going in an attempt to force an unpopular piece of legislation down throats both dry and wet. Incidents of this kind make opponents of some of prohibition's former ardent supporters. Unless federal officers are more reasonable in their methods, prohibition will come to be a bitter political battling ground in the near future. The Boston Traveler deplores this tragic business in the following editorial,

The much-too-quick trigger-finger of a dry agent has claimed an apparently innocent victim, in another of those episodes along the Canadian border. This time a candy merchant named Henry Virkkula of Big Falls, Minn., driving homeward from the border with his wife and two children, met instantaneous death when he failed to halt at the commands of federal patrolmen assigned to prevent smuggling.

Not a sign of liquor was found in the car, county police declare.

Call it murder or what you will, the fact remains that a citizen who was not violating the prohibition or anti-smuggling laws in any particular, has been whisked into eternity by the hasty act of a federal officer who thought his authority was being defied or was going to be. Virkkula's wife says he had not gone ten feet after the command to stop was heard, before he was shot.

While the courts are proceeding to try the officer, E. J. White, who admits firing the fatal volley, the public in its turn, will ponder the facts and wonder whose turn will come next to be executed by the quicker-than-lynch law of the border. No doubt federal patrolmen are cautioned by their superior officers not to shoot except in self-defence. Too many of them ignore that caution with tragic results. Indirectly they help to increase still further the resentment which the dry law has aroused in many breasts.

Thank You, Andover!

The Principal and Trustees of Abbot Academy wish to express their appreciation for the splendid co-operation of Andover people in the observance of the one hundredth anniversary of the school. They are indebted particularly to those who so hospitably opened their homes to guests; to the South Church for providing a place for the exercises and the Woman's Union for furnishing meals for visiting alumnae; to the town authorities and to the Andover Press and the Andover Townsman, for their valuable assistance.

The glory of the occasion should be shared with the community to which the school owes its origin and support. Abbot Academy belongs to the town in a very real sense. It is the outgrowth and flowering of the desire of the citizens for adequate educational facilities for their daughters.

The interest shown by Andover people, their pride and saitsfaction in the celebration, made an atmosphere of good will that was indeed gratifying.

American Iris Society Visits Andover Garden

Twenty-five members of the American Iris society in the course of their annual pilgrimage made on Monday of this week visited the garden of Herbert F. Chase on Summer street. Mr. Chase is a charter member of the association.

Mr. Chase has been interested in the growing of iris for many years and now has more than two hundred named varieties under cultivation. The beautiful setting of his garden completely enclosed by a fine growth of deciduous and evergreen trees, with broad grass walks between the beds of handsome blooms was unique among the gardens visited.

Besides the named varieties Mr. Chase has been successful in growing several interesting and beautiful seedlings, one of which he has named Skitchewang after a mountain in his native state of Vermont.

Among the party were members of the association from Saco, and Portland, Me., Providence, R. I., Waltham, Bedford, Melrose, Swampscott, Lynn, Middleton and Lexington.

Other gardens visited included those of Mrs. Gertrude I. Titus of Swampscott, Mrs. William H. Morse of Pride's Crossing, Mrs. Thomas Nesmith of Lowell and Mrs. C. W. Willis of Bedford.

Makes Address at Banquet of Andover Theological Seminary Alumni

Last Monday, Dr. Bigelow, who holds the responsible position as Chairman of the Visiting Committee of Andover Theological Seminary attended the annual banquet at Cambridge, given to the alumni by the Board of Trustees. At this meeting the affairs of the Seminary were frankly discussed and future plans definitely outlined.

The principal address was given by Dr. Bigelow whose grasp of the whole situation was driven home with such force and clarity of statement as to call forth the enthusiastic response of the large body of alumni who listened. He explained in detail the problems, both legal and creedal, they, as a Committee were called upon to solve, and traced the progressive approach to their final and satisfactory solution.

A unanimous vote of thanks was extended to him for the illuminating and forceful outline of the present status of this old and cherished institution.

Injured in Fall at Shawsheen Camp

Falling about five feet from a porch at a camp on the Shawsheen river, Ballardvale, late Tuesday night, Harold Pirck, 28, of 99 Central avenue, Chelsea, suffered a dislocated shoulder, and was removed to the Lawrence General hospital.

Pirck was visiting at the camp of some friends on the Shawsheen and in some unexplained manner fell from a piazza railing, falling five or six feet, it was said. He was first taken to the office of Dr. J. J. Daly in Andover, where he was given superficial treatment.

Dr. Daly then ordered his removal to the hospital, where he was taken in the ambulance of the Andover Fire department.

Engagement Announced

The engagement of Miss Madeleine Frick of Woodside and Los Angeles, California, to Daniel Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Allen of Cheshire, Conn., and formerly of Andover was announced on Sunday, June 2, at the annual fraternity engagement party held at Leland Stanford University.

Miss Frick is a graduate of the Marlborough school in Los Angeles and was graduated last year from Stanford University, where she is now taking a post graduate course.

Mr. Allen was graduated from Phillips academy in 1922 and from Yale with the Class of 1926. He is a member of the Skull and Bones Society and the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Cutler of 9 Abbot street announce the engagement of their daughter Dorothy McKeen Cutler to Malcolm W. Burr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Burr of Dorchester.

Kimball Named Andover Captain

Walter S. Kimball '30, of Sistersville, W. Va., has been re-elected captain of the Phillips academy baseball team for next season. The election was held at a meeting of the letter-men Tuesday afternoon.

Kimball has been a regular on the team for the past two years leading the team this season. A year ago he covered third base but this year played both at the hot corner and at first base. In the latter position he shaped up exceedingly well and should be a fine asset for the Blue at that position again next season.

Besides being on the ball team he was also an end on the football eleven last season starring in the Exeter game by blocking two Red and Grey punts and converting one of them in a touchdown while the other paved the way for a score.

Football and baseball however, are not his only sporting events as he also won his letter as a member of the suburban swimming team. He is an excellent diver and two years ago scored many points for the blue swimming team. During the past winter he was handicapped by sickness, and was unable to compete in but a few meets.

His re-election undoubtedly will prove a popular one with the student body and it probably will not come as any surprise to his many followers.

Candidates for Legion Junior Baseball Team to Meet

All candidates for the American Legion junior baseball team will meet at the Legion hall Monday night, June 17. Boys are advised to look up their birth records as only boys born after midnight, September 14, 1912, will be eligible for the team. George Walsh will be the business manager.

The Legion wishes to express its gratitude to the townspeople who so generously contributed to the Poppy day drive. At the meeting of the Legion post held Tuesday night James Fairweather, chairman of the committee on Poppy day was presented with an American Legion cigarette lighter in recognition of his services. The presentation was made by Frederick R. Hulme of the executive committee.

Report of Dramatic Department Entertainment

Approximately one hundred seventy-five dollars will be made above expenses from the entertainment given on May twenty-fourth by the Dramatic department of the November club.

The receipts from this entertainment are to be used to send an Andover scout to the World Jamboree at Birkenhead, England. Here Scouts from all over the world will meet and live together for two weeks.

The United States is limited to a membership of approximately fifteen hundred scouts, and the Andover organization is fortunate to be able to register one of her scouts.

The money received so far will not be sufficient to pay the expenses of the proposed trip. Anyone interested in helping send our scout on this trip may send contributions to the Scout treasurer, E. A. Anderson, care of the Andover National Bank for the Jamboree Fund.

PYTHIAN MEMORIAL

text the words of St. Paul, "If any man bui'd on this foundation." He said in building the Temple of Friendship, the unseen temple, there were many stones in many lives, which could be called shaping stones. Some have lived and done their work and are now with God. They are finished stones fitting into God's temple. For such as these "taps" were sounded.

In the Pythians' Temple of Friendship, there is one tremendous cornerstone exemplified by the life of a man called Pythias. Mr. Henry related the story of Damon and Pythias, on which Pythianism was founded.

Friendship, Mr. Henry said, is a quest, conquest and consecration. Pythias was on a quest, a tremendous quest. We have quests, the ordinary quests in our daily living. One great temple we are building, the Temple of Friendship. All have not a natural gift of friendship. Some of us are diffident, but the gift of friendship is one for all to cultivate. It is a quest and the Pythian order helps to walk along the path of friendship.

Pythias went forth to do something for Damon, and he was successful. In our lives, we must renounce selfishness if we are to make conquests for friendship.

And there must be consecration. Pythias consecrated his life to Damon. We must have sympathy for those who sorrow and those afflicted and in need. We must have sympathy for servants in public life, sympathy for those doing their best for the fraternal orders where criticism is too often heard. Sympathy is a great expression in making for consecration. But more than sympathy is needed. Power is needed to do even the small things in life to express friendship. The industry of building the Temple of Friendship needs motive power. That motive power is not inherent within ourselves, but comes from God. The right foundation is the words of St. Paul for the foundation is Jesus Christ, Himself.

The musical service was elaborate and was sung by the vested choir of fifty voices under the direction of Gordon S. Brown, organist and choirmaster. T. Tertius Noble's festival Te Deum and Jubilate, Cesar Franck's 150th Psalm and Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus" were inspiringly rendered. At the opening of the service, the choir sang "My Country 'Tis of Thee," following the processional.

Work Accomplished by Board of Public Works During May

The most conspicuous piece of work accomplished by the Board of Public Works during the past month is the reconstruction of Wheeler street which was started on May 7. In places it was necessary to remove loam to a depth of three feet to reach a solid foundation and many large bowlders had to be removed. Phillips Academy is paying the cost of the reconstruction.

The following streets have been blanketed with asphalt or tar during the month of May: Dumbarton street, Sutherland street, Sterling street, Riverina road, Magnolia avenue, Corbett street, Ridge street, Locke street, Shawsheen road.

The reconditioning of the Abbot bridge on Central street has been completed. The work was done by G. M. Henderson's Sons, who were the lowest bidders at $615.00. The fence has also been renewed over the Argilla Road bridge. A section of Rocky Hill road has been covered with ashes which were taken from the Andover Guild.

The water extension on Gray road as recommended in Article 10 of the annual town warrant was started May 3 and completed May 23.

The painting of the engine and boiler rooms at Haggetts' pond pumping station was completed during the past month. This cost but little in actual expense and greatly improves the appearance of the station.

The early summer work of the park department has included installing the swings at the Ballardvale Playground and the grading, seeding and rolling of the triangular plot near the West Parish church. A section of the outfield in the baseball diamond has been plowed harrowed and seeded. The irregular surface of this section of the field made it precarious for outfield players.

Sporting Events at H. N. S. Outing

The sports committee: J. J. O'Connor, chairman; M. A. Burke, Henry J. Dolan, Edward J. Lefebvre, John Nelligan, Frank Nelligan, Leo F. Daley and William Collins.

Mothers' Club to Hold Picnic

The Andover Mothers' club will hold a picnic Tuesday June 25. Complete plans will be announced shortly. All those desiring to take children should notify Mrs. George York of Summer street not later than June 18.

Odd Fellows to Attend Divine Worship on Sunday

Andover lodge, 230, I.O.O.F. and Indian Ridge Rebekah lodge, 136, will attend the 10:30 o'clock service at the Baptist church Sunday morning. Members of Andover lodge will assemble at Fraternal hall at ten o'clock and march to the church. They will be joined at the church by the Rebekahs who will assemble there. The sermon will be preached by the pastor, Rev. C. Norman Bartlett.

Wedding

ANDERSON—CALDWELL

Miss Isobel Templeton Caldwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Caldwell of Park street became the bride, Saturday night, of David Anderson, well known soccer player and son of Mr. and Mrs. Anderson of Dundee, Scotland. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Frederick A. Wilson, D.D., pastor emeritus of the Free church, and was held in Fraternal hall. During the service, the couple stood under an arch of spring flowers.

The couple were attended by Miss Doris Ferrier as bridesmaid and Peter Anderson, brother of the bridegroom as best man. The bride wore a gown of white crepe, period style and tulle veil caught up with orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses and sweet peas. The bridesmaid wore green satin with black horsehair hat and carried an arm bouquet of sweet peas.

The ceremony took place at 6.30 and was followed immediately by a reception and wedding supper served by Caterer A. P. Weigel. Guests were present from Andover, Lawrence, Woburn, Quincy, Lynn and New York city.

Dramatic and Musical Entertainment

"The Dictator" by Richard Harding Davis was the play chosen for presentation by The Phillips Academy Dramatic club on Thursday evening in George Washington hall before a large audience of commencement guests.

The vicissitudes of two young men who, to escape a scrape into which they fell in New York, hastily board a steamship bound for Central America, fill three acts in which there is not an uneventful moment. Intrigue, and revolution, not to mention designing women keep the hero on the jump. A large cast of characters together with American sailors, Spanish soldiers, policemen and servants made the play especially suitable for the talent of the club. The three impersonators of women received their share of applause.

The very effective scenery representing first the deck of a ship at sea and later the consulate of the United States at Porto Banos was designed and executed by D. P. Wilson, B. M. Gelser, D. P. Davies and W. T. Reed.

An invitation was accepted to vist the gardens of Mrs. James C. Sawyer and Miss Frost in Durham, N. H., on July 9. A picnic luncheon will be carried and all arrangements are in charge of the program committee.

Plans Mature for Vacation Church School

Contributions for the Andover Daily Vacation Church School crossed the $300.00 mark this week, coming from ninety-eight donors, thirty-four of whom are affiliated with the South Church and thirty with the Free Church. Nearly half of this amount has been raised through the personal solicitation of Miss Caroline Abbot, who will again be registrar of the school. This leaves $125 still needed, exclusive of the contributions of $1.00 per pupil which it is hoped that most of the parents will feel like making on enrollment day, Friday, June 28, from 9.00 to 11.00 a.m., at the John Dove School.

Estimated expenses total $525 as follows: Director, $100; department principals, $160; other officers and teachers, $100; supplies, $100; other expenses, $65. Another year it is hoped that the cooperating churches will appropriate the necessary funds in their budgets. Anyone wishing to provide free room or board or both for Miss Porter and Miss Mittendorf for a week or longer is asked to notify any of the officers of the interchurch committee in charge: Thaxter Eaton, chairman; Mrs. C. Norman Bartlett, secretary; Randolph H. Perry, 70 Elm street, treasurer.

The first meeting of the staff will be Wednesday evening, June 26. On Thursday afternoon and evening, an institute for workers and anyone interested will be held at First Church (Congregational) Methuen, under the auspices of the Massachusetts and Greater Lawrence Councils of Religious Education. On Sunday evening, June 30, a consecration service for staff, pupils and parents, arranged by Miss Jean Porter, will take place at the Free Church.

Anyone wanting to assist in the work of the school under competent direction is asked to get in touch with some one of the principals: Mrs. J. A. Burtt, Miss Bessie Carter, Miss Esther Mittendorf and Miss Margaret Manning or with Miss Abbot. The school begins Monday, July 1, and will be open to children between four and fourteen years of age up to the number of 200. Because of the longer sessions, as compared with church schools, and the daily repetition, it is felt that as much can be accomplished in the way of character training and religious education for the real enjoyment of life, in four weeks, as in the whole of the church school year.

Joe Rines Plays at Roseland Tonight

New England's outstanding radio broadcasting orchestra, led by the famous Joe Rines in person, will be featured at Roseland-on-the-Merrimack this evening. Every radio listener in New England knows and loves this great band, which has been located for three successful years at the Elks' hotel in Boston and which has also won a lasting place in the affections of the dance public through its hundreds of Brunswick records. Today Joe Rines is a radio braodcaster of national repute, facing the microphone for the Columbia nation-wide system from New York. From this point his broadcasts are heard throughout the country. It is small wonder, therefore that Joe Rines' great band stands supreme in the New England field of ballroom music.

By booking Rines for the Merrimack Valley's most successful ballroom, the management of Roseland keeps faith with its public, to whom it made the promise at the beginning of the season of bringing here nothing but the best in dance music. There isn't any doubt that Joe Rines will repeat tonight the sensational success he registered at Roseland a year ago. There will also be check dancing at Roseland tomorrow evening, with the Jersey Jicc-Jaccs occupying the orchestral stage. This is the local band which has on no less than three occasions broken all check-dancing records in Roseland history.

Andover 2—Exeter 12

Phillips Exeter last Saturday afternoon scored the largest number of runs scored against an Andover team since 1897 when it won, 12 to 2, in the annual battle between the two prep schools at Plimpton field, Exeter, N. H. Back thirty-two years ago an Exeter nine defeated Andover, 12 to 6, back in 1878, the first year the two teams met, Exeter won, 12 to 1.

Andover however, has broken that number of runs scored by one team when it defeated Exeter 22 to 6 in 1887. Exeter's largest total of runs scored however, previous to Saturday's conflict was in 1919 and 1927 when it tallied 11 runs against the Blue.

Bobby Coombs, twirling his final game for Exeter, succeeded in going through his baseball career at Exeter without losing a contest to the Blue in four years. He again gave a brilliant exhibition of pitching striking out no less than thirteen opposing batters, allowing but five hits and passing but one batter.

For four straight innings he held the Andover team hitless mowing down the opposition in the third, fourth, fifth and sixth innings. Starting with Losee as the first batter in the fourth inning he fanned five successive Blue men to face him. At the bat Coombs made but one safe hit. It was however, his final for the Exeter team as he came up in the ninth as the first batter and sent one of Broaca's fast ones to deep right center field for a circuit drive.

John Broaca a former Lawrence high school athlete, twirled for the Blue. His work was very impressive despite the fact that Exeter touched him for ten safe hits. Erratic playing by his mates put him in a hole on more than one occasion while poor throwing to the bases also added in his downfall.

Broaca sent ten of the heavy-hitting Exeter team down via the strikeout route, passed three and hit one. His first strikeout victim was none other than the Bobby Coombs, the first batter to face him. He also fanned Kimball in the same inning.

Jackson of Andover opened the game with a fly which Frankie Spain took care of in deep short. Mettler and King the following two batters went down on strikes. In the latter half Coombs was struck out, Spain foul flied out to Rogers and Kimball went down on strikes.

In the second inning Andover scored its first run. Batchelder beat out a slow roller down the third base line and reached second safely when Losee laid one down the first base line and was safe when nobody covered first base as Dick Kimball fielded the ball. Captain Walter Kimball of the Blue sacrificed Coombs to R. Kimball as both runners advanced. Phil Allen sent a long fly to Lynch in center which enabled Batchelder to score while Losee held up at third. The latter was left stranded as Rogers hit a foul fly to Rich.

Exeter came back with three in the latter half of the second inning. Rich slapped one into right field for a single, and went to second on a sacrifice bunt, Broaca to Losee. Weston hit one through center but Jackson allowed the ball to roll by him and Rich crossed the plate and Weston went to second. Pixley was given a base on balls and Weston advanced to third on a wild pitch. Broaca then struck out Curtin. Lynch, however, singled to center scoring Weston while Pixley tallied on another error by Jackson. Coombs hit a hard grounder to King who forced Lynch at second.

In the third, Broaca grounded out to Dick Kimball and Jackson and Mettler fanned. The latter went out at first, Fremd to R. Kimball. In the latter half Spain opened with a fly to Jackson. Kimball went out at first, King to W. Kimball and Rich went down on strikes.

But three Andover men faced Coombs in the fourth. King struck out. Batchelder hit to Rich and was thrown out at first and Losee went down on strikes. In the final half Exeter again scored. Fremd struckout but reached safely at first when Rogers missed the final strike. Weston dropped down a bunt but Broaca threw wild to third to late to get Fremd and both runners were safe. With Pixley at bat Weston ran down to third and was caught between the two bases, Rogers to King, as Fremd crossed the plate. Evans and Curtin then went out on strikes.

Coombs had but three men face him in the first of the fifth inning. Kimball, Allen and Rogers went down on strikes. Exeter tallied two in its half. Lynch opened with a single to right and Coombs was passed. Spain sacrificed, Broaca to Losee. Kimball struck out for his second time. Rich singled to right scoring Lynch and Coombs. Fremd hit to King who tossed to Losee, forcing Rich at third.

Andover put a man on base in the sixth but he stayed there. Broaca opened with a strikeout. Jackson went out, Spain to R. Kimball, on a spectacular stop and lightning throw by the former Newton High star Mettler drew a free ticket, the only one that Coombs issued, and then stole second. He was left as King grounded out to R. Kimball. In the final half Exeter tallied three runs. Weston was passed and Pixley beat out a hit to Losee. Curtin sacrificed both runners. Lynch hit to Losee who in throwing home with no chance of getting his man, made a poor peg, allowing Weston and Pixley to score. Lynch took second on the play Coombs flied out to Allen in left. Spain singled to center, scoring Lynch. Kimball was hit by a pitched ball and Spain advanced on an error by Rogers. Rich ended the frame with a foul fly to the Blue catcher.

Andover tallied one in the seventh for their second run of the game. Batchelder went down on three swings. Losee beat out an infield tap and advanced to second when Weston made a poor throw to first. W. Kimball fanned on three swings. Allen reached on an error by Weston as Losee tallied. Allen went out attempting to steal, Fremd to Spain. Another run was chalked up for Exeter in the latter half of the seventh. Fremd was struck out and Weston reached when Jackson dropped his fly ball. Evans batting for Pixley struck out. Bennett batted for Curtin and hit a fly to left which Allen dropped allowing Weston to score and Bennett to reach second. Lynch however, went out Losee to W. Kimball.

In the eighth inning Rogers flied out to Spain and Broaca struck out. Jackson beat out an infield hit but went out stealing, Fremd to Spain. Coombs opened the latter half with a circuit drive to deep right center. Spain put a single into center and by fast running reached third while R. Kimball was being thrown out at first, Mettler to W. Kimball. Rich singled to center scoring Spain. Fremd flied out to Jackson and Weston was thrown out at first Mettler to Kimball.

Clan Johnston Bowlers Win

Novices at candle pins Clan Johnston's bowling teams beat Clan Wallace of Beverly at their own pet game Wednesday night on the alleys of the U. S. M. A. A. in the clubhouse on McKay street, Beverly. The result, a win of 148 on the total pinfall of three matches was a distinct surprise for the Beverly hosts.

The Wallace clansmen were routed by Johnston's No. 1 team whose lead of 204 pins was the big margin which spelled defeat for Beverly. Leaders for Clan Johnston were Jim Caldwell with 116 and 287, Bob Dobbie who arranged the match, 98 and 284 and Jim Fettes, 100 and 278. Past chief John Auchterlonie of the local clan filled in for Clan Wallace and had second best score.

Led by the veteran Charlie Petrie Clan Wallace's No. 2 team managed to divide the points winning the total by three pins. The veteran was high with 104 and 271. None of the Johnston men could roll consistently at the "picket fences" but Bill Dobbie had 98 for high single and Davie Strachan 267 for top triple.. Clan Wallace's sole win came from their team which took the first two strings and the total by 53. A century by Little Danny in the final string won by eleven pins. A. Nelson of the Wallaces rolled 118 for the best single of the match and 283 for high triple.

The visitors were shown every courtesy by their hosts and royally entertained in the dining room of the clubhouse after the match. The outing was the most enjoyable of the season and Clan Wallace will be guests here next Wednesday night.

BOOST ANDOVER — LIVE IN ANDOVER

MOST PROSPEROUS INDUSTRIES ARE THOSE WITH GREATEST PRODUCTION PER EMPLOYEE

Prosperity of Automobile Business Would Never Have Been Possible without Remarkable Improvements in Machinery and Standardization of Production— Salvation of Farm Depends on Efficiency Methods

Babson Park, Massachusetts, June 14, 1929. Notwithstanding the scathing criticism by certain foreign "intelligencia" of American standardization and machine methods, the fact remains that these methods have made America the most prosperous and the most comfortable country in the world in which to live. If standardization is bringing us all onto a common level, so that we all dress much alike, enjoy the same amusements, have many of the same privileges and luxuries, then it is truly making us a democratic nation. How much better than that half of our people should live in miserable poverty so characteristic of many European countries!

I am much interested in the relation of the prosperity of various industries to the degree in which they have been standardized and mechanized. Unquestionably the increasing use of machinery is the reason why some industries show larger output per worker than others. Of course, certain lines of business are better adapted to machine methods than others. However, many industries which formerly thought they could not use modern machinery at all are rapidly adopting it.

Relative Efficiency of Industries

One way to determine the approximate efficiency of an industry is to divide the production value added by manufacture" by the number of employees. This figure, known as "value added by manufacture," is arrived at by deducting the cost of the raw materials from the total value of the products produced. It shows the increase in value resulting from the manufacturing process. In general those industries with the highest value per worker are the most efficient. It does not matter whether this efficiency comes through the use of labor-saving machinery, through better management, through more efficient labor devices, or through a combination of these causes. I find that those industries which are making the greatest use of machinery are showing the highest value of products per worker. For example, among the largest industries, automobiles stand at the head of the list with a value per worker of $4,108 per annum. Next is the printing and publishing business with $3,849. The meat packing industry is third with $3,530; iron and steel fourth with $3,206; men's and women's clothing fifth with $3,070; electrical machinery and equipment sixth with $3,052; machinery and machine shop products seventh with $2,803; lumber eighth with $1,796; and cotton textiles ninth with $1,389.

Most Prosperous Lines Use Machine Methods

Present great prosperity of the automobile industry would never have been possible were it not for the remarkable improvements in machinery and the standardization of production methods of the past few years. Another huge industry, iron and steel, is now making the most extensive use of machine methods in its history. Earnings of the iron and steel business were 111 per cent greater in the first quarter of 1929 than in the same period of 1928, indicating a highly prosperous condition. Other notably prosperous lines are electrical machinery and equipment, printing and publishing, machinery and machine tools, chemicals and drugs, petroleum refining and food products.

Contrast the high earnings of these businesses which are all large users of machinery, with the low earnings of agriculture where man-power still is the most important factor. To be sure, introduction of farm machinery is going on rapidly and the use of power on the farm in the next few years should greatly help in reducing costs and increasing profits of farming. Today, however, the farm industry is employing one-third of the total workers of the country and still shows a value or production per worker lower than any other industry. The salvation of the farmer depends upon adopting the efficiency method, insofar as possible, that have been successful in manufacturing lines.

Modern Machine Methods Keep Wages High

Although greater uses of machinery are creating some unemployment, they are also tending to keep wages of those employed at high levels. Industry can still keep high wages only when it is prosperous. As machinery and standardization of products increase industrial profits they keep wages high. Moreover, mass production through machine methods tends to build up new industries accessory to, or affiliated with, those already in existence. For example, the growth of the auto accessory business, garages, filling stations, etc., is directly due to mass production of automobiles. Thus new jobs are provided in servicing lines for those thrown out of production work by labor-saving machinery. The problem of caring for the "machine-made-unemployed" is one of vocational adjustment. Other new industries and services are springing up which will ultimately take care of these men, but, as I have often mentioned, there is a great need for adult vocational training to fit them for their new work.

Machines and Merchandising

The cost of distribution is one of the highest costs in our whole economic system. Our production processes have reached a high state of efficiency, but our selling is still wasteful. This is leading to the introduction of mechanical devices such as vending machines. Such machines are particularly adapted to the sale of nationally advertised package goods. Purchasers know exactly what they are getting when they buy these nationally known products and in many instances a vending machine is quicker and more convenient, and certainly a more economical method of selling. The time may come when a very large part of our retail selling will be done by machine. There are physical limitations to this of course, and there will always be the requirement for individual service which only human contact can provide. Nevertheless, labor-saving machinery is steadily coming into the field of merchandising and this movement will continue.

Business by the Babsonchart is still seven per cent above normal compared with five per cent above a year ago.

The day's program will be brought to a close by a short, one-act play entitled "The Essex Shoppe."

Camp Bauer

The boys working on the School Farm are now comfortably quartered in the old Homemaking Building in the room formerly used as an assemnly hall. This old building has been put to many uses since the fire three years ago and now it is used as headquarters for Camp Bauer. Mr. Raymond Yerrington of Norwich, Conn., who was trained at the Y. M. C. A. College in Springfield has been employed as substitute camp counsellor until June 15 when Douglas Sutherland of the same college will take up his duties at the School.

Andrew Coukos, '25, is a senior at M. A. C. Coukos is said to be the only three-letter man now at that institution, having won his letter in football, basketball and track. Coukos holds the M. A. C. record for the discus throw.

The Family Doctor in Cancer

It is to him that a person should go for diagnosis and treatment. If the family physician is not certain of the diagnosis, he should not wait, but refer the patient to some other physician or to a hospital or clinic where special facilities exist for the examinations which are required.

It is no reflection upon the family physician when he cannot himself make a diagnosis in cancer, for the disease takes so many forms and affects people in so many ways that it is sometimes impossible even with the best equipment, skill and experience, to be certain of the trouble. There is an old saying and a true one to the effect that the more simple the diagnosis the more fatal the case. The reason for this lies in the fact that advanced cases of cancer present symptoms which are unmistakable, whereas newly formed cancers in certain locations may present few or no symptoms.

The family doctor in cancer should be the patient's guide, philosopher and friend. He is familiar with all the resources in his region of the country which can be turned to the advantage of his patients. He should be suspicious of cancer upon the slightest evidence, and he should be firm in the instruction he gives as to treatment. Being a practitioner of medicine and not a surgeon, he may not be able to perform the operation, if one is required, but he should know the qualifications of those who can do so with the greatest skill. He should be aware of the pitfalls which lie in the field of quackery and be able to guide his patients away from them.

Two-Thirds Majority Doesn't Mean That

A "two-thirds majority" is merely a popular way of saying that a candidate received two-thirds of all the votes cast in an election. Suppose, for instance, 3,000 votes are cast, and one candidate receives 1,000 and the other 2,000. The latter receives a two-thirds majority; namely, two-thirds of all the votes cast. In this case the actual majority over the other candidate is only one-third of all the votes, and literally "two-thirds majority" should mean that the difference between the two figures is two-thirds of the total number of votes. For instance, if one candidate had received 500 and the other 2,500, the difference —2,000—would equal two-thirds of the total. But the term is generally used to express the idea of two-thirds of all the votes regardless of the number received by other candidates.—The Pathfinder.

Fastest Thing on Legs

"The fastest thing on legs" is the title deserved by the whippet, the featherweight, long-legged racing dog that is rapidly becoming popular in America. Over a 200-yard course the dogs will outdistance a race horse, reaching the finish in from 10 to 12 seconds. That is half the time the fastest man would require!

In the Farm Journal, Werner P. Meyer tells how the whippet originated in England. "The breed was built up," he relates, "chiefly by mixing the blood of the greyhound with the terrier family. The result of this interbreeding was a dog resembling the greyhound in physical features but smaller and lighter of build; and to the speed and stamina of the greyhound were added the daring and gameness of the terrier family."

Oldest Road in America

The old Spanish road, built across Mexico in the Sixteenth century, is believed to be the oldest road in North America. It was built in the form of a letter "Y" with the lower point starting at Vera Cruz on the gulf. The northern prong touches the Pacific at San Blas and the southern tip at Acapulco. Because of this road the west-bound convoy lines from the Philippines were spared the dangerous navigation around Cape Horn. There still is evidence that this old trail was used by the Indians before the Spaniards broadened it from a pack-mule path to a highway.

Speed Hog

Armed with pencil and notebook, a reporter attended a certain meeting and took up a position below the platform.

He worked very quickly, and occasionally the speaker glanced at him rather nervously, afterwards speaking at greater and greater speed.

But the faster he spoke the quicker the reporter's pencil glided over the paper. Finally the orator could stand it no longer.

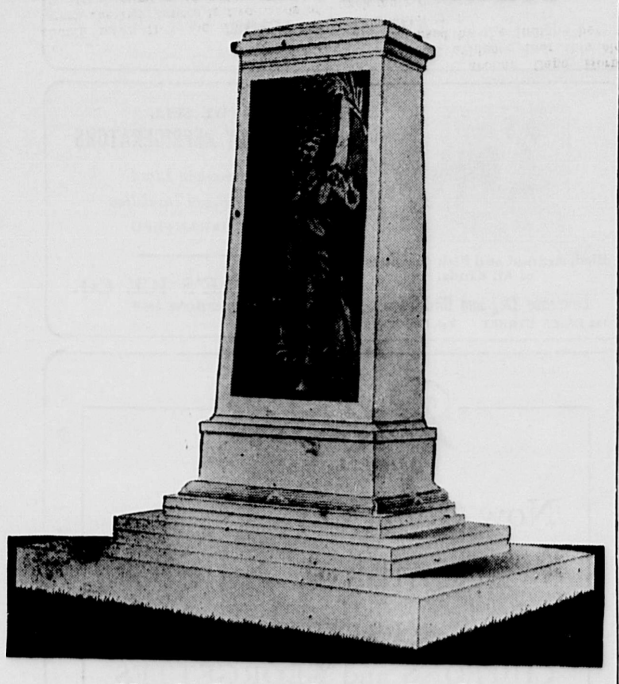

"Not so fast," he shouted; "not so fast! I can't keep up with ye."

Sympathetic Tree

A tree that died with its owner is the subject of a strange story told at La Grange, Mo. When William Quinn was born on a farm 71 years ago his father, Benjamin Quinn, planted a hard maple sapling. The tree thrived as the boy grew. William Quinn was devoted to it.

When Quinn died a few months ago so did the tree. To keep alive the memory of the spot the family left a six-foot stump in cutting the giant maple. A vine was planted at its base.

Obituary

JAMES SOUTAR

After an illness of nearly two years James Soutar died early Monday morning at his home at 34 South Union street, the last but two of a group of Scotchmen who came here nearly sixty years ago to work in the Smith and Dove flax mills.

Mr. Soutar was born in Arbroath, Scotland eighty years ago and with eight others sailed for this country on October 16, 1871 on the "City of Brussels" then the Queen of the Atlantic. The nine landed in New York ten days later and skilled flax workers all came to Andover. In the group were Alexander Lamont, William Grieg, Barnett Rogers William Leslie, John Leslie, David Sloan, William Warden and Alexander Dick. Of these all have passed away except Alexander Lamont, veteran flax expert and William Greig.

Mr. Soutar remained in the employ of the Smith & Dove company, as an overseer until ten years ago when he retired. He was identified with the formation of the Andover Cricket Club, playing with the Cricket club of old Frye Village where he lived. His only fraternal affiliation was with Andover lodge, 230, I. O. O. F.

Besides his wife Mary he is survived by two sons Jospeh Soutar of Portland, Me., and James Soutar of South Union street; three daughters, Mrs. Walter S. Rhodes of California, Miss Annie Soutar and Mrs. David S. Burns and six grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at his home Tuesday afternoon and were conducted by Rev. Dr. Frederick A. Wilson, pastor-emeritus of the Free Christian church. Burial was in the family lot in Spring Grove cemetery.

The honorary bearers, former fellow workers and close friends were Alexander Lamont, William C. Coutts, Andrew Kydd and Alexander Dick. The active bearers were Joseph Soutar and James Soutar, sons, James Soutar, grandson and David S. Burns, son-in-law.

Shawsheen Sunday School to Hold Picnic

The annual picnic of the Shawsheen Community Sunday school to be held in conjunction with the schools of the West and Christ churches of Andover and St. Paul's of North Andover will take place Saturday, June 22. Pleasant pond park at Wenham has again been engaged for the outing as it has proved to be an ideal spot.

A full list of sports and a ball game is being arranged by a joint committee and all who attend will be sure of a full day's fun.

The children of the Shawsheen Sunday school will be transported in private automobiles and owing to the large number on the roll, there now being about 150, it will be again necessary to confine transportation to only members of the school. Others may attend the outing, however, if they provide their own means of transportation. The start will be made from the Mall at nine o'clock. The return trip will start at 4.30. Several cars are still needed for transportation and if anyone would care to help in this respect they can communicate with Albert N. Wade, 4 Carisbrooke street.

Ballardvale Scout Wins Coveted Trip to England

Alvin Zink a fourteen-year old scout from Ballardvale is announced as the winner of the trip to the Scout Jamboree to be held at Bickenhead, England, during the first two weeks of August.

Zink comes out as winner in a contest in which sixteen of the Andover scouts enrolled, practically each troop in town having one or more to represent it.

The contest was planned so that a boy was judged in three different ways. His personal record in scouting counted fifty percent, the record of his troop counted twenty-five per cent, and the personality of the scout himself counted twenty-five per cent.

The record of standing of each scout is kept carefully by the Scout Executive and this record was used to judge his advancement in scouting.

The Scout Commissioner grades each troop three times each year and these figures, made up by careful observation of the work of the troops, were used to decide each troop's record.

The personality test represented the most difficult problem and for this test each of the contestants was required to write a theme on the subject "What the Trip to the Jamboree Means to Me."

The contestants were called together one evening without knowing what the test was to be, and were then asked to write a theme on the above subject. In this way no boy could prepare in advance and the theme represented his uninfluenced ideas. The boys standing highest in this test were then asked to meet as judge, Bernard M. Sheridan, Superintendent of Schools of Lawrence.

Mr. Sheridan knew none of the boys, and so was an impartial judge, he met each boy and studied him and gave each one a personality rating which was used to count for twenty-five percent on his final rating.

The personality record, while the hardest to decide, is really the most important as the trip as planned was not intended merely to give an Andover scout a good time, but to stimulate such an interest among the scouts in scout work that the organization in the whole town shall feel the benefits from this trip.

It was desired, therefore, as far as possible, that the boy chosen should be able to bring back to his fellow scouts such reports, that the organization at home should feel the inspiration of the trip.

For this reason, at the start, the boys were told that two boys who had equal standing in scouting would be further judged and the one chosen would be the one who gave promise of getting the most out of the trip.

These Jamborees are held every three years and it is believed that if Andover scouts could look forward to a trip of this kind as a reward for excellent work, the work of the scouts and scoutmasters would be very greatly benefited. It is with this hope in mind that this trip has been planned.

Scout Zink is fourteen and one half years old and is in the freshman class at Punchard; he has shown a keen interest in scouting from the start. He is a Life scout and has won twenty merit badges, lacking one only to become an Eagle Scout.

The official American Red Cross First Aid Course conducted by the North-Essex Council Inc., Boy Scouts of America, came to a happy ending on Wednesday evening, June 12, with appropriate exercises in the Oliver School Hall in Lawrence. Friends of the Boy Scout Movement in Andover should be particularly pleased to know that one fourth of the graduates were members of the Andover Scout organization; in a class of sixty-four, sixteen were local nembers. In addition to this Andover had the honor of furnishing the official Red Cross Instructor in the person of Dr. Edward J. Sawyer of Central street.

The American Red Cross Society presented an engraved certificate and a bronze First Aid Medal to the following Andover men: William H. Haigh, Wendell H. Kydd, Harold A. Rutter, Henry G. Schultz, Earl J. Urban, Donald Dumont, Gilbert J. Cromie, George Forsythe, Clare W. Norton Jr., Hartwell B. Abbott, Charles H. Armitage, John D. Armitage, Hans Gordon, Arthur J. Mullen, Joseph C. Schultz, Dr. Nathaniel Stowers.

The National Council of the Boy Scouts of America also presented an official First Aid Certificate to these men.

In addition to the bronze medal and these certificates, special certificates and service medals were given in recognition of service as leaders during the course to the following men: William H. Haigh, Wendell H. Kydd, Harold A. Rutter, Henry G. Schultz, Earl J. Urban.

A beautiful wrist-watch was presented to Dr. Sawyer by the members of the class in recognition of his splendid service; and a fountain pen desk set was given to Carl Currier of Lawrence, who served as Scoutmaster of the course. The course consisted of twelve lessons, given over a period of three months and the graduates are qualified to render First Aid in any case of Emergency or to give instruction in any future course.

He said that he swerved the front wheels of his machine but struck the child who was later treated by Dr. Philip W. Blake for minor injuries.

Test for Eggs

The shell of a new-laid egg has a soft "bloom," which is the visible sign of perfect freshness. This bloom is destroyed by a touch, and in any case disappears after a few days' exposure to the air. After that the appearance of the shell is not a reliable indication of the condition of its contents.

Art of Engraving

In 1822 Thomas Lipton introduced soft steel for engraving. Before that time copper was used. The invention of giving a steel coating to a finished copperplate engraving made the old medium as commercially productive as the steel and soon ended the career of the latter.
